LAND OF THE FAT - Based at Leeds Metropolitan University, the Carnegie International Camp is Britain's first summer weight*-loss* program for children. For the youngsters there, the goal is to gain confidence* and to learn how to eat well. In this summer camp, forty boys and girls, aged 11 to 17, have paid approximately 400 pounds a week to be put on monitored meal plans, to attend nutrition classes, to do all sorts of sports intensively.

These kids chose to spend their vacation this way. "I always wanted to lose weight", declares Jennifer, a 16-year-old from Somerset. "My sister is 18 and beautifully thin. It's nice to come some place where she isn't", she also said.

Some campers also say that, for the first time, they can make friends or go on dates*. By summer's end, the weight losses were not dramatic, around two kilos a week. "In two weeks, I lost 4 kilos of fat and gained two in muscle", Jennifer says.

That slow and steady* loss is exactly what Paul Gately, the camp's founder, intended. "The objective is to encourage them to be active and competent, and then, they will get confident. »

Voc. : weight = poids ; loss = perte ; confidence = confiance en soi ; rather than = plutôt que ; go on dates = avoir des rendez-vous amoureux ; steady = durable, stable
